

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
0
1
2
3

2 An accessory mount for a firearm having a longitudinal barrel, a first support
3 and a second support forwardly of the first support. The accessory mount includes a
4 first longitudinal mount housing having a rear portion, the first housing positionable
5 along the barrel with its rear portion supported by the first support; a second
6 longitudinal mount housing having a rear portion, the second housing positionable along
7 the barrel with its rear portion supported by the second support; longitudinal grooves in
8 one of the housings, and longitudinal flanges on the other of the housings slidably
9 received by the channels and transversely securing the housings together; and at least
0 one adjustable member carried by one of the housings and cooperating with the other of
1 the housings for urging the housings in longitudinally opposite directions, preferably
2 with the rear portion of the first housing rearwardly urged against the first support and
3 with the rear portion of the second housing forwardly urged against the second support.